3 federal agents shot, motel set ablaze in Kansas

(CNN) — What started as a would-be arrest at a Kansas motel ended with three federal agents shot and the motel engulfed in flames. Officers from the U.S. Marshals Service's Fugitive Task Force went to the motel in Topeka on Saturday night to look for Orlando J. Collins, the FBI's Kansas City office said. Collins, 28, was wanted on two robbery-related charges. But as officers reached the motel room door, "they came under gun fire from inside the hotel room," the FBI said in a statement. Two deputy U.S. marshals and an FBI agent were shot but are expected to survive, the FBI said. Previously, Topeka police said a fourth federal agent had been injured in the melee. That officer apparently suffered a leg injury but was not shot, the FBI said. As the shooter kept firing from the motel room, "a fire was ignited from within the room, which eventually spread to the entire building," the FBI said. That blaze burned for more than three hours as flames soared into the night sky, CNN affiliate WIBW reported. Authorities later found an unidentified body in the room Collins was believed to be in, the FBI said. No one else was injured, since the hotel had been evacuated. Collins was on Kansas' most-wanted list and considered armed and dangerous, the FBI said. A federal arrest warrant charged him with two counts of interference with commerce by means of robbery. Some nearby residents initially thought the gunfire from the motel might have been firecrackers. "We were wondering what exactly what it was," Christian Brull told CNN affiliate KSNT. "There was a couple of shots going on." Lindsay Haight and Emerson King told the station the gunfire came very rapidly. "Fully automatic weapon, for sure, it sounded like," King said.

Obama announces an additional 250 special operations forces to Syria

(CNN) — U.S. President Barack Obama has announced an additional 250 special operations forces will be sent to Syria in the coming weeks in a speech in Hannover, Germany in an effort to stem the influence and spread of ISIS. "Just as I approved additional support for Iraqi forces against ISIL I've decided to increase US support for local forces fighting ISIL in Syria, a small number of special operations forces are already on the ground in Syria and their expertise has been critical as local forces have driven ISIL out of key areas," Obama said, using another acronym for the jihadist group. "So given their success I've approved the deployment of up to 250 additional US personnel in Syria including special forces to keep up this momentum." He stressed that U.S. troops will not be leading the fight on the ground but they will be essential in training and assisting local forces. "So make no mistake these terrorists will learn the same lesson as others before them have, which is 'your hatred is no match for our nations united in the defense of our way of life,'" he said. He said the increase would bring the number of U.S. special forces in the country to as many as 300 troops, including special forces. Obama added that his administration would continue to pursue diplomatic solutions to ending the Syrian civil war. "Just as we remain relentless on the military front we're not going to give up on diplomacy to end the civil war in Syria because the suffering of the people in Syria has to end and that requires an effective political transition," he said. The troops will be expanding the ongoing U.S. effort to bring more Syrian Arab fighters into units the U.S. supports in northern Syria that have largely been manned by the Kurds, an official told CNN earlier. The plan calls for the additional U.S. forces to "advise and assist" forces in the area whom the U.S. hopes may eventually grow strong enough to take back territory around Raqqa, Syria, where ISIS is based. These troops are not expected to engage in combat operations or to participate in target-to-kill teams but will be armed to defend themselves, one official said. "As we have noted in recent days, the President has authorized a series of steps to increase support for our partners in the region, including Iraqi security forces as well as local Syrian forces who are taking the fight to ISIL," a senior administration official CNN, using a different acronym for ISIS. "The President during his remarks at the Hannover Messe fairgrounds on Monday will speak to this additional step." The official said the president was persuaded to take this additional step because of recent successes against ISIS.

Los Coyotes Indian Reservation, San Diego County

As a result of rains and flash flooding on the Los Coyotes Indian Reservation in San Diego County, Mission #2016-Southern-22320 was approved to address the community life safety needs, road repair, and other critical concerns in conjunction with FEMA, Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), Cal OES Southern Region, Cal OES Tribal Advisor, Caltrans Region XI, San Diego County OES, and Los Coyotes Tribal personnel.

- Caltrans installed five (8'x12') steel plates along with safety signage to provide temporary road stability and improved access over the Los Coyotes Reservation's only life line road. Delivered and installed on Saturday 4.16.16.
- The road is currently stable with one lane closed
- Stakeholders will continue to monitor the situation to provide long term solutions.
- Per the Cal OES Southern Duty Officer (SDO), due to miscommunication between BIA and Tribal personnel, BIA will conduct another site visit on 04/25/16.
- The Tribe has applied for a US Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) funding waiver for repairs. USACE assessed the road and is awaiting BIA assessment
- All further action is on hold pending the BIA assessment.
- National Weather Service is providing the Tribe with daily spot forecast data. There is currently a potential for precipitation on 04/25/16 which may cause additional road damage
- Emergency preparations in place, including food and generators staged with the Viejas and San Manuel Tribes offering assistance (no monetary contributions)
- The Cal OES Southern Region Tribal Point of Contact, Territory Representative, and SDO continue to monitor the incident.

Weather of Concern

Northern California

- For Northwestern California, temperatures are expected to be cold yet again tonight and Tuesday morning, and given the expected lighter winds, frost is expected to develop in many interior valleys.
- A bit of rain and snow through today with drier weather on Tuesday.
- Wet weather returns again midweek.
- Colder air with brisk northwest to north winds will spread across Eastern California today.
- Light snow accumulations (up to 3 inches) may produce slick travel conditions Monday morning near the Sierra and in foothill locations above 6000 feet.

Southern California

- Gusty Northwest winds are expected through tonight for much of the region.
  - 40-65 mph gusts of wind expected
  - Dangerous driving conditions are expected, and downed trees and power lines are possible.
- Northwest Gales over the Coastal Waters will persist through tonight, with strong gales possible: gusts will range from 35 to 45 knots.
  - Large and rough combined seas are expected as the locally-generated wind seas mix with a longer period west swell.
  - Strong rip currents and longshore currents are expected for most beach areas, and minor beach erosion will be possible.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

The closed low pressure has moved into northern California this morning. The low is expected to continue to move southeast into Nevada. Isolated showers continue from the cascades west. Snow showers will continue over the Warners this morning from moisture wrapped around the low but by this afternoon the atmosphere is expected to stabilize under northwest flow aloft. Expecting less cloud cover tonight than previously thought and the radiational cooling could bring overnight lows for Southwest Oregon and Northern California valleys into the lower to mid 30s and frost is possible overnight. Please take needed precautions to avoid frost damage.

Eureka Weather:

Cool weather with breezy but gradually diminishing north winds will continue into Tuesday. Frost is expected across much of the interior tonight and a few of these areas may see temperatures fall slightly below freezing as well. Additional light rain is expected Tuesday night through Wednesday and a warming and drying trend will follow heading into the weekend.

Reno Weather:

Low pressure will move through western Nevada with a few showers and brisk northwest winds expected this afternoon. After a break Tuesday, unsettled weather returns for Wednesday and Thursday. A warming trend with dry weather is looking more likely for next weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

Cool and breezy conditions will continue today. Lighter winds are forecast for Tuesday along with seasonable temperatures. There is a chance of showers from late Tuesday night through Wednesday evening as a weather system tracks across California from north to south. Dry weather is forecast late in the week and into the weekend along with a warming trend.

Sacramento Weather:

Unsettled and cool weather today, then again Tuesday night and Wednesday.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

Blustery winds and below normal temperatures will occur throughout the Central California through this evening in the wake of a storm system over the great basin. A few showers will linger over the mountains today as well. A weak ridge of high pressure will bring dry weather and much lighter winds to the region from late tonight through Tuesday night. A pacific storm system could bring wet weather into the central California interior Wednesday through Thursday. Temperatures will average cooler than normal through Thursday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Gusty northeast winds will bring warm and dry conditions to the area through Monday with temperatures peaking on Sunday. A low pressure system will approach the West Coast mid-week resulting in a cooling trend Tuesday through the end of the week.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Gusty northeast winds near the coastal foothills and inland valleys will decrease this afternoon with weaker winds for Monday and Tuesday. High pressure aloft near the west coast will bring coastal warming into Monday with warming for the mountains and deserts continuing through mid-week. A pacific low pressure system will move inland through California late in the week bringing cooling and gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts with small chances for light precipitation late Friday night into early Saturday. Night and morning coastal low clouds and fog may return as early as late Tuesday night and early Wednesday becoming for extensive and spreading farther inland on the following nights.

Southeast California Weather:

An unseasonably large and cool weather system will remain nearly stationary over Colorado and New Mexico today. This system will be large enough to keep temperatures near or slightly below normal over the area. A high pressure system will build into the region this week for clear skies and significantly warmer temperatures through the middle to latter portion of the week.
